After more than two years' hard working, the APEC project "Improving the Institute Capacity of Higher Education under Globalization: Joint Schools among APEC" (HRD03/2003) has been completed successfully. As the overseer of the project, I want to take this opportunity to express my thanks to so many institutions and members for their effort making the project undertook smoothly.

Firstly, I'll give my thanks to co-sponsoring APEC Members of the project. They are U.S., Viet Nam, Korea, Philippine, Australia, Thailand, New Zealand, Japan, Malaysia, etc. It's their common concern of transnational education made our proposal ranked high at the meeting of HRDWG in May 2002 in Ha Noi Viet Nam.

Secondly, I have to say I'm so appreciated of APEC Secretariat's supportive and effective working for the project, not only of the central funding, but also of technical support through the whole course of project study. And all the constructive suggestions and direct assistant gave to the project group members by Dr. Joseph Doraisamy, Program director and Ms Belinda Chok, Program Assistant are unforgettable.

Thirdly, I have a lot of thanks to Ministry of Education of New Zealand, Department of Education, Science and Training of Australia government, especially to Ms. Emily Fabling and Kristie van Omme for their succeed organization, active participates and friendly cooperation on the project study and report composition. And Australia provided an important opportunity for the project to exchange information during UNESCO/OECD Forum in Sydney.

Personally, I'm grateful to Mr. Yan Guohua and Mr. Zhang Yun from Department of International Cooperation and Exchanges, the Ministry of Education, P. R. China for their coordination and leadership for the undertaking of the APEC project.

At last, I'll thank Dr. Dong Xiuhua for her great effort on the project contact and China's Case Study and Integrated Study.

Thanks to everybody who have been concerned, is concerning and will be concern of the project, the topic of joint schools among APEC.
